EVEN THIEVES MAY BE WRONGED. Found Guilty of a Crime the Commission Which Others now Contest.

case of mistaken identity which has caused the incarceration of two innocent men came to light yesterday. At 3 A. M. on the orning of July 24 Timothy Kelly, a laborer of 225 East Forty-fourth street, was knocked down by three men at Forty-second street and Vanderblit avenue and robbed of a pocket-book containing $35. Policeman Kiernan of the Thirtieth street station, who patrols a block away, came up in time to arrest one of the thieves, but the other two escaped. The prisoner gave his name as James Kelly and was recognized as an old offender. He pleaded guilty before Justice Gorman in the Total Market Police Court the next day and was

On the morning of the robbery and about an hour later Policeman Helmus of the Fifty-first street station saw two men bending over a drunken man on Third avenue, near Forty-fourth street. When Helmus came up the men ran away. The policeman pursued the fugitives through hallways and over back fences, and finally captured them in the attic story of an East Forty-fourth street tenement. They were locked up under the names of John Murray and Frank Doran, but when they were Murray and Frank Doran, but when they were straigned in the Yorkville Police Court they were recognized as John McCabe and Frank Gorey, two ex-convicts who had a week previously finished serving terms of six months each in the penitentiary. In McCabe's possession was a pawn ticket for a gold watch on which he had received $30. Their proximity to the Forty-second street robbery, and their known bad character, gave rise to the suspicion that they were the two robbers who had run away. Accordingly the next day they were mixed up with fifteen other prisoners in the prisoners' box at the Yorkville Court, and Kelly was summoned to see if he could identify them. Without the slightest hesitation he picked them out, and swore point blank that they were two of his assailants. Upon his affidavit they were held. Detective Cuff traced the gold watch which McCabe had pawned to Thomas Birmingham of 1.135 Second avenue. It had been stolen from him by McCabe awe was also indicted and held. Is hely, McCabe and Gorey were tried at the General Sessions. The first pleaded guilty. The other two stoutly maintained their innocence, but, as the witnesses to prove their slibit were all ex-convicts, the jury found them guilty. That was on last Monday. On Thursday Inspector Byrnes received the following letter from McCabe and Gorey:

Ring West the said John McCabe & Frank Gorey have been convicted of the erims of Robbery of which we are innocent. We was not near the said plac at the time. Relly who pleaded guilty knows this & knows who the real thieves was. We sak you to see that we get Justice. We write to you as we know that you are said to be an Honorable man. Respectfully

Inspector Byrnes seen the letter to Detective Cuff who want to Kelly. arraigned in the Yorkville Police Court they Inspector Byrnes sent the letter to Detective Caff, who went to Kelly.

Kelly said the real thieves were Robert Vaughan of 823 Second avenue and James Mulvaney. Cuff also learned that Mulvaney had boasted of the robbery to a stable keeper named William McDermott, and had shown him some of the proceeds. On Saturday Robert was arrested, and shortly afterward Mulvaney was captured. When told of Kelly's confession they broke down and confessed also. In the Yorkville Police Cart yesterday they pleaded guilty, and were remanded to await the action of the District Attorney. Gorey will now be liberated, but McCabe has yet to stand trial for the theft of the gold watch.

A HARDWARE DEALER SWINDLED. Helfiells $1 Cases of Goods to a Stranger and Is Lucky Enough to Recover 17. Charles Weiland, a hardware dealer at 5764 Grand street, at whose shop Edward Unger bought the saw with which he carved up Au-gust Bohles after murdering him, called on Inspector Byrnes on Friday to complain of a swindler. His daughter, who identified Unger as the purchaser of the saw, accompanied him. She is the wife of a policeman.

Mr. Wieland said that on Tuesday a young man with whom he had had dealings got him man with whom he had had dealings got him to ship twenty-one cases of hardware, worth $1,200, to Albany addressed to Corning & Swift. As he had heard nothing from the goods, although the time for their payment was up, he concluded he had been victimized. Inspector Byrnes telegraphed to Albany and learned that eight of the twenty-one cases of hardware had been shipped back to this city on the People's Steamboat line, while nine others remained in the Hudson River Railway depot at Albany.

Detectives Van Gerichten and Titus watched the People's line dock, and on Saturday they collared a carman who inquired after the eight cases and proposed to reship them to Charles A. White of Buffalo. They got him to introduce them to his employer, who proved to be the Charles A. White in question. They collared the ister at Sixth avenue and Tenth street. He confessed all about his attempt to get possession of Mr. Wisland's twenty-one cases of hardware without paying for them. The four missing cases, he said, he had sold for $170.

White used to be in the hardware business in Buffalo, and that is why he wanted the twenty-one cases of hardware business in Buffalo, and that is why he wanted the twenty-one cases of hardware business in Buffalo. and that is why he wanted the twenty-one cases of hardware sent there after they had been shipped to Albany, and then back here to throw people off the seent.

AN OLD FIREMAN INSANE.

He Standson a Window Ledge and Warns the

A crowd gathered yesterday noon in front of a house on East Fifty-first street, attracted by the spectacle of a man who was attempting to climb out on the ledge of a window sill in the third story. He seemed to think he was the third story. He seemed to think he was putting out a fire, as he kept shouting to the crowd below to look out for ialling ladders. A pretty young woman was endeavoring to keep him back, and her screams added to the excitement. Several persons dashed up stairs, and, by coaxing, induced the man to come in from his perilous position. Then Policeman Janes took him to the Fifty-first street station. The young woman, who was his daughter, accompanied him. He seemed to be perfectly calm and docile. He was Fellx Armstrong, a veteran fireman, and once chief inspector in the Department of Public Works. He has not been in his right mind for some time.

Silence reigned until the Justice said: "Thirty days."

He Kept Himself Open on Sunday. A decided novelty in the way of violation of the Excise law occurred yesterday morning in Suffolk Street. Policeman Mooney found Jacob Freisch, a big German, with a stick of pretzels as big as himself and German, with a stick of preizels as big as himself and two bottles of strong drink in his pocket, selling the drink at five cents a glass, with a preizel thrown in Mooney took him to court and showed that he was selling on bunday, selling without license, and being open on Runday, selling without license, and being open on Runday, tomplaint was taken for selling without license, and in about uffees minutes he got bailed out to awalt trial in the remote future, slong with some eight or ten thousand other violators of the Excise law who are awaiting trial at the Court of General Sessions. Fritsch marched out triumphantly with his protects.

James Meehan, a laborer, of 509 West Nine-teenth street, went home drunk flaturday night, pulled his sick wife out of bed, and threshed her. One of their three-weeks old twins fell out of bed during the runpus, and Reelian stopped on it, severely hirring it. Yester-day Justice Fatterson gave him a mouth on the Island.
